3. Conversion of Corporation into a Company.—(1) The Corporation shall be deemed to have been converted into a public company limited by shares with effect from the commencing date.

- (2) As and from the commencing date,—
 - (a) the Company shall be deemed to hold and own all assets and liabilities of the Corporation without any conveyance, alienation or assignment and without any further act, deed or registration and without discharging or invalidating any contract; and
 - (b) without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing clause, the Company shall,—
 - (i) be entitled to the benefit of all notifications, licenses, permissions, sanctions, authorizations, concessions, decrees, air service agreements, orders and benefits whatsoever issued or granted in favour of the Corporation as on the commencing date, including but not limited to the permissions connected with the listing of the securities of the Corporation on the relevant stock exchanges; and
 - (ii) be deemed to have taken over and shall be entitled to enforce, all rights, licenses, grants and concessions and to have assumed all liabilities of the Corporation and shall be liable to pay and discharge all liabilities of every description and nature whatsoever of the Corporation.

(3) The shareholders of the Company shall be deemed without any fresh issuance of shares to own and hold the same number of fully paid shares with such rights and privileges (including as to class, kind and face value) as they owned and held in the Corporation on the commencing date; and the authorized capital of the Company shall be deemed to be equivalent to the authorized capital of the Corporation as on the commencing date and no fee or charges shall be payable in this regard.

(4) All proceedings of every description and nature whatsoever by or against or relating to the Corporation pending on the commencing date in any court, tribunal, or other authority shall be continued, defended, prosecuted and enforced by or against or relating to the Company in the same manner and to the same extent as they would have been continued, defended, prosecuted and enforced by or against or relating to the Corporation, and the same shall not abate, be discontinued, prejudiced or otherwise affected by the provisions of this Ordinance.

(5) The Company shall be deemed to be the successor-in-interest of the Corporation, and the name of the Company shall be deemed to have been substituted for the name of the Corporation in all contract, agreements, licenses, orders, certificates, powers of attorney, consents, undertakings, leases, grants, concessions, records of Central Depository Company of Pakistan Limited and all other instruments or documents of every description and nature whatsoever relating to the Corporation and no objection shall be entertained by any court, tribunal or authority in regard to such substitution or on the ground that any such contract, agreement or document as aforesaid was, or is, in, or with, the name of the Corporation and not the Company

(6) All employees of the Corporation shall be deemed to be employees of the Company on the same remuneration and other conditions of service, rights and privileges including but not limited to the provisions as to their pension, provident fund and gratuity, as the case may be, and other matters as were applicable to them before the conversion:

Provided that—

- (i) notwithstanding anything contained in this Ordinance or any other law or any decision of any court or tribunal, the employees of the Company shall continue to be governed by non-statutory contractual terms, conditions, rules and regulations of service and such terms, conditions, rules and regulations shall not acquire, or be deemed to have acquired or be treated as having acquired, statutory status;
- (ii) no person deemed to be employed by the Company under this section shall be entitled to any compensation or benefit as a consequence of the conversion of the Corporation into a Company; and
- (iii) salaries of those employees of the corporation who upon conversion become employees of the Company shall not be changed to their disadvantage, unless such change is in accordance with applicable law.

(7) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 146 of the Companies Ordinance, the Company shall, upon conversion, continue all business and undertakings of the Corporations as were being carried on immediately prior to the commencing date.

4. Power to pass orders for the transfer of assets.—(1) During the validity period and subject to a prior Company request, the Federal Government may issue orders providing for the transfer of specified assets to a relevant entity substantially on the terms set forth in the relevant arrangement.

(2) The orders shall be binding on the Company, the relevant entity and any other person having any right, claim or liability in relation to the Company or any relevant entity.

(3) As and from the date specified in the order, the specified assets shall, by virtue and to the extent provided in the relevant order, stand transferred to, and vest in, the relevant entity, without any conveyance, alienation or assignment and without any further act, deed or registration and without discharging or invalidating any contract, and be subject to the terms of the relevant order in all cases.

5. Guarantees to remain in force.—Notwithstanding the repeal of the PIAC Act, all guarantees given by the Federal Government to any person, including foreign or local institutions, to secure any of the liabilities of the Corporation shall remain in full force and effect as though they were given on behalf of the Company.

6. Stamp duty.—No stamp or other duties or charges shall be payable under any law for the time being in force in relation to the conversion and transfers pursuant to orders and issuance of shares under this Ordinance.

7. Name of Company.—The name of the Company shall not be changed without the consent, in writing, of the Federal Government.

8. No gain or loss.—Neither the conversion nor the transfer of any asset of the Company through an order shall give rise to any gain or loss under the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (XLIX of 2001).

9. Ordinance to override.—The provisions of this Ordinance and the orders issued hereunder shall have effect notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any other law for the time being in force.

10. Removal of transitional difficulties.—If any difficulty arises during the validity period in giving effect to any provision of this Ordinance, the Federal Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, make such provisions as may appear to it to be necessary for the purpose of removing the difficulty.

11. Repeal.—(1) The PIAC Act is hereby repealed.

(2) On repeal of PIAC Act under sub-section (1), nothing contained in the said Act shall be applicable to the Company, its shareholders or any other person that may have had interest in the Corporation immediately prior to the conversion.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Pakistan International Airlines Corporation (the Airline) was established and operates under the Pakistan international Airlines Corporation Act, 1956. In recent years, though, the Airline has not been able to fulfill its statutory mandate. It has been incurring huge losses and has become a burden on the national exchequer. The Airline has also failed to provide the quality of services deserved by the people of Pakistan, as mandated by law.

2. The main objectives of the Government of Pakistan with regard to the Airline are to ensure its continued operations as the country's national airlines; to promote rapid development and modernization of the Airline to encourage injection of capital, skills and latest technology; to upgrade the Airline operational and financial performance and too achieve improvement in performance and operational efficiency in various business segments of the Airline. In order to achieve these objectives, it is imperative that the Airline be corporatized and converted in to a public limited company, incorporated under the Companies Ordinance, 1984. This conversion will enable the Government of Pakistan to revitalize the Airline and develop a healthy, competitive aviation sector in Pakistan.

3. The Ordinance is designed to achieve the aforesaid object.
